Wellington and Reeves Sportsperson of the Year Awards

Albany Mayor Dennis Wellington has congratulated the winners of the City of Albany's annual Wellington and Reeves Sportsperson of the Year Awards.

A gala ceremony was held last Friday night at the Albany Entertainment Centre, featuring West Coast Eagles legendary player and coach John Worsfold as special guest speaker.

Champion shooter Steve Hurley took out the Impulse Cycles Senior Award, as well as the main prize – Wellington and Reeves Sportsperson of the Year.

Craig Wiggins won the Albany Finance Junior Award, while Adrian Shepherd took out the National Lifestyle Village Veteran Award.

"These awards are highly sought after and competitive, and the quality of entries shows just how talented a pool of champions we have in Albany," he said.

The Wellington and Reeves Albany Sportsperson of the Year Awards is an annual event held in March which celebrates our highest achieving sportspeople from our local Albany sporting clubs.

Nominations are collated on a monthly basis and are reviewed by a judging panel for the selection of the monthly sportsperson winners.

Mr Wellington thanked the sponsors that made the event possible: Wellington and Reeves, Albany Finance, Impulse Cycles, National Lifestyle Village, Albany Advertiser, Radiowest, GWN7 and the Department of Sport and Recreation.
